The Republicans of the XIII New York Assembly District opened the campaign with an enthusiastic meeting in the Grand Opera House, Wednesday evening. Among he speakers was the Hon. Mahlon Chance who kept the large audience in good humor with his witty remarks upon the shortcomings of the Democratic Administration. He tore away the mask of pretentious reform which the Democratic leaders, and particularly the Cabinet officers, have assumed; made an eloquent defence of the Republican polley of protecton, and cologized the work accomplished by John Roach in behalf of American lar and therican ships. In speaking of Attorney-General Garland's connection with telephone stock, he said. Indiana is again excited over a postomee, appointment and the faithful are indulging in much hard feeling. It ap-plans that Senator Voorhees secured the appointment of one Reagan, a salt keeper, at Terre Hante, as postmaster, and the friends of the other candidates are. charging him with treachery. There were originally three candidates for the place. Beagan, Foley and Van Valza. They all went on to Washit gton, and each had pret y good backing. The friends of the two defeated candidates claim that they were gotten out of Was's ngton under full ses. They say that it was represented to them that the matter was t decided by a vote of the people of the town, and they were persuaded to leave Wishington and go home to prepare for this local election. At most, immediately after they had gone, while they were in the

that they go early the next morning.

To mail my letters and return home was a matter of perhaps ten minutes, during which time I pondered on this last trick of our light-fingered friends: Entering the house again, I hung up my hat and turned as usual to the library to see if the windows were fastened, and without drawing the curtains aside. I passed my hand mechanically to the lock, to find kifast, but —Good fleuxens! the pane above the lock was gone! I felt as though I had received a staggering blow! Cold chills ran up and down my body! Mechanically I rubbed my fingers across the lock, and reviewed the situation.

*Either the burghers had just effected an entrance, having taken the opportunity offered by my brief absence from the house, or they were outside watching my every movement. I have no idea how long I stood there with my hand on that lock. It seemed death to move, and I hardly drew breath as the short, faint gusts of that damp chill brevze of the first morning hours after modnight stirred the curcuius toward me. And I could almost feel the crowded breath of the desperadoes crouching with deadly weapons beneath my window.
